

Law and Humanities Summer School

Law, Art, Politics

15-19 June 2020
University of Lucerne, Switzerland

Organisers

Institute for Interdisciplinary Legal Studies – lucernauris
Centre for Law, Arts and Humanities, The Australian National University
Law Department, University of Roma Tre
Institute for Art History, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich

Confirmed Speakers

Desmond Manderson · Carey Young · Daniela Carpi
Fiona Macmillan · Emanuele Conte · Stefania Gialdroni
Malte-Christian Gruber · Vagias Karavas · Michele Luminati
Steven Howe · Antoinette Maget Dominicé · Laura Petersen

Overview

The Law and Humanities Summer School is an intensive one-week study programme, to be held at the University of Lucerne, Switzerland, from 15 to 19 June 2020. The school is co-organised by the following partners:

- Institute for Interdisciplinary Legal Studies – lucernaiuris, University of Lucerne
- Centre for Law, Arts and Humanities, The Australian National University
- Law Department, University of Roma Tre
- Institute for Art History, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich

Bringing together leading scholars, researchers and postgraduate students, the school will showcase cutting-edge work at the intersections of law and the humanities, and serve as a laboratory for exploring a range of contemporary methods, approaches and issues.

Focus: Law, Art, Politics

The 2020 Summer School will focus on the entanglements of law, art and politics. From statues of the Roman Emperors to Picasso's Guernica, some of the world's most celebrated works of art have been explicitly political. But in the twenty-first century everything has been disrupted – including law, including art, including politics. We live in a world obsessed by images and distrustful of politics; a world in which the public sphere is collapsing and private interests seem more powerful than ever. What, then, is the role of art in making and unmaking, representing and challenging the language of law and the power of politics? Can art disrupt the disruptors?

Starting from this contemporary perspective, the school will offer a panorama of the dynamic intercourse between law, art and politics across a variety of sites, contexts and periods. The programme will draw on the expertise of scholars working in different research fields and across multiple critical traditions to address such questions as:

- How do images and aesthetics shape the character of law?
- What role does art play in transmitting legal and political ideology, or in fostering critique or social change?
- How might we understand the relations between forms of artistic cultural expression and legal identities?
- What are the effects of art's material manifestations on the law?
- How does art participate in, activate, or reflect upon the imagining of legal futures?

Programme & Activities

The summer school will explore new developments in law and humanities research via interdisciplinary workshops, critical reading groups, and evening lectures and events. Participants will also be encouraged to present and discuss their own projects at one of a series of colloquia run throughout the week.

In addition to the academic sessions, the programme will also include a number of social and cultural events in and around Lucerne. The school thus provides a unique platform for participants to join a community of curious thinkers from different backgrounds and jurisdictions, and to establish lasting networks and friendships.

A detailed programme will be published online at www.lucernaiuris.ch.

Faculty & Speakers

The summer school programme will be delivered by an international cohort of distinguished scholars, emerging academics and cultural practitioners with a diverse range of experience and disciplinary expertise. Confirmed speakers include:

- Desmond Manderson (Centre for Law, Arts and Humanities, The Australian National University)
- Carey Young (Artist, Associate Professor in Fine Art, Slade School of Fine Art, University College London, and Honorary Research Fellow, School of Law, Birkbeck, University of London)
- Daniela Carpi (Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, University of Verona)
- Fiona Macmillan (Law Department, University of Roma Tre & Birkbeck, University of London)
- Emanuele Conte (Law Department, University of Roma Tre)
- Stefania Gialdroni (Law Department, University of Roma Tre)
- Malte-Christian Gruber (lucernaiuris, University of Lucerne)
- Vagias Karavas (lucernaiuris, University of Lucerne)
- Michele Luminati (lucernaiuris, University of Lucerne)
- Steven Howe (lucernaiuris, University of Lucerne)
- Antoinette Maget Dominicé (Institute for Art History, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich)
- Laura Petersen (Institute for International Law and Humanities, University of Melbourne)

Applications

Applications are invited from doctoral candidates and advanced graduate students – of all disciplinary backgrounds – with research interests in and across law and the humanities.

Submissions should include:

- a completed application form (available at www.lucernaiuris.ch)
- a short academic CV (max. two pages)

These documents should be returned as a single .pdf file to lucernaiuris@unilu.ch by Sunday 1 March 2020. Notification of the outcome of applications will be communicated by Monday 16 March 2020.

The registration fee for the school is CHF 275. This includes: teaching materials, tuition, lunches, coffee breaks, welcome and farewell events, and a tour of the Lucerne Art Museum in the world-renowned KKL.

Please note that accommodation is not included in the registration fee. Applicants can gladly contact the organisers for a list of options.

Contact

Please direct all enquiries to lucernaiuris@unilu.ch.

Australian
National University

